Using Dogs to Sniff Out Mold in Homes

Sydney is hunting for mold. When she sits down, that means she smells mold nearby. Usually mold is found within three or four feet. A boy who lives in this house gets epileptic seizures. It could be from mold.

Sydney is very special. Only about ten animals in the US can do this. She spent hundreds of hours with a police dog trainer in Florida to learn how.

When workers checked, they found mold near where Sydney sat. Nobody thought to look for mold there before. Now it can be cleaned out and the boy will feel much better. In the US people have used dogs to find drugs and bombs for a long time, but dogs that find mold are something new.

People in Europe have used mold-sniffing dogs for many years. Dogs are cheaper to use and can find exactly where the mold is. They can also do it quickly for less than $500. Other methods can cost thousands of dollars and take many weeks.

People who breathe toxic mold might have trouble sleeping or suffer from asthma, pain, or other problems. Experts still aren't sure about all the sickness and suffering that toxic mold can cause.

But now dogs can help people get well by showing them where mold is growing in their houses, so they can get rid of it.

36. Why is the dog in the story so interested in mold?

1. It smells really good to her.
2. She is interested in it.
3. She has been trained to find it.
4. Mold smells like meat.

37. What kinds of illnesses can be caused by molds?

- | | |
|-----------|---------------------|
| 1. asthma | 2. insomnia |
| 3. pain | 4. all of the above |

38. How are mold-sniffing dogs better than traditional mold detection methods?

1. cost
2. timeliness
3. ability to discover the location.
4. all of the above

39. Why do people want to know where the mold is?

1. To clean out the mold
2. To find out the mold
3. To grow it easily
4. To breathe in the mold

40. Are the experts sure about the sickness that molds can cause?

1. Yes, you are.
2. Yes, they are.
3. Yes, they do.
4. Yes, I do
